

platform flip flops, minions orange, scooters, stranger things sunglasses, low rise jeans, gru, bananas, overalls, rip, boom box juicy couture, edith, eleven, 2000s, lorax, track chains dave the minion, football jerseys, braids, runway shorts baggy jeans, once-ler, goggles, vector, y2k, flip flops, scoops ahoy

SCORE board seniors 600
juniors 200
sophomores 800
freshmen 400

SCOOTIN'

ONE LAST time

Seniors take on their last first day of Spirit Week by rolling with style.

(left) SCOOTING IN STYLE Ryan Hudacek, Anna Wingard and Maya Quinlan scoot around in their y2k outfits. "The scooter was super fun and made it easier to get to class on time," Quinlan said.
 (right) TRICKS ON THE senior deck after school, senior Rocky Leitch does a tail whip on his scooter. For Leitch, the day was exciting but he was also upset since his last first day as a senior had no rally during lunch. "Since the rallies got canceled we were all a bit bummed since it's all coming to an end so soon," Leitch said.
 Photo by Clare Antonow

(top left) TWINNING IN THEIR baggy jeans and jerseys, seniors come together for a group photo on the quad. Seniors Isai Pulido, Ethan Wong, Adam Schilling, Jonas Lee, Rocky Leitch and Murt Yanar stand together. "I had all the clothes at home so it was easy to accomplish the y2k look," Lee said.

(middle left) CAPTURING THE MOMENT, Natalie Karel ('23) snaps a selfie with Josefina Uribe Brandi ('23) and Caitlin Bannon ('23). The three all dressed up in y2k outfits, but each has their own spin to the look. "I decided to go with more of an everyday look so I took a lot of inspiration from my cousins who grew up in this time," Karel said.

(bottom left) POSING TOGETHER FOR a photo, seniors Joseph Rose and Sami Lee pose on the quad. "I like seeing how everyone expresses themselves and the final photos on Instagram," Rose said.
 (middle) SCOOTING AROUND THE quad, senior Kellyn Scheel blasts 2000s music while riding around to each class for the day.
 (right) THE PERFECT SHOT Seniors pile into the frame for their group photo. Philip Santiago stands in the middle of the group, decked out in gold and black baggy pants. "I wanted to pop so I thought the gold and black would be unique," Santiago said.

(left) TRANSPORTING INTO A day in the 2000s, Brianna Zhou ('23), standing in between seniors Shiki Toyama and Carter Blair, decks herself out into a classic look for the time. "In the 2000s low rise was really in so I wore low flare jeans and a waist chain with a little halter top," Zhou said.

(above) ACTING THE PART, Luke Young ('23) and Tommy Butler ('23) bring a swagger with them as they walk around campus in their y2k outfits. "I found inspiration for my outfit from the senior class last year and was able to find most of what I wore from my closet and also borrowed from my friends," Butler said.

(left) COVERED IN YELLOW paint, Ben Wolfe takes his theme next level. "I used acrylic paint to cover my body and it cracked off everywhere at school," Wolfe said.
 (right) IS THAT AN orange? Freshman Gavin Lin walks the runway covered from head-to-toe in orange to show spirit for the freshman class. "I really enjoyed walking the runway because I got to show off my school spirit," Lin said.
 Photo by Caleb Wong

STUDENTS got style

A look into how student's styled to match their themes.

(left) THE NEW ROBIN Decked out in 80's, the sophomores are inspired by the popular TV show "Stranger Things." Rianne Lui captured first place with her Scoops Ahoy inspired look. "I chose Robin since she has always been my favorite character since she's so nice and really fun," Lui said. Photo by Caleb Wong.
 (bottom left) RATING THE RUNWAY Lincoln Tutor and Cameron Phillips watch as their classmates walk down the runway. "Watching the sophomores was a lot of fun since they got really creative," Phillips said. Photo by Meredith Glasson
 (bottom right) I WANT A UNICORN! Agnes-inspired outfit, junior Bee Montes wears her hair with a bright red scrunchie, unicorn backpack and blue overalls. Photo by Tate Hardy

PROPS to the SENIORS
 From skateboards to boom boxes, students brought everything.

What prop did you bring for y2k?
 "I decided to bright my boom box so that I could play music from the 2000s. Artists such as 50 cent and OutKast played throughout the day and got people really hyped in the hallways."
What did you wear?
 "I wore a Braves jersey, large chains, a backwards hat and a watch."
How were you feeling?
 "I was really hyped going into my first day of Spirit Week but bummed that there were gonna be no rallies since that is my favorite part about the week."
 Photos by Meredith Glasson
JULIAN GALINDO MACIAS

falling into FIRST

Lunch rallies were canceled for the first two days, but runways during brunch made up for the loss.

The popular lunch rallies were pushed back for Monday and Tuesday of Spirit Week. After the Gunn vs. Paly game, administration canceled the rallies in hopes that students would realize the harm that they caused when rushing over to the Gunn student section. The rallies were then replaced with runways during brunch. Each grade would pick the two most spirited and then they would perform down the aisle. Junior Ellie Roth won on day one with her minion outfit. "The runway made me forget the complications with Spirit Week and a good way to show our grade's spirit," Roth said. The runways were a good addition to Spirit Week since students still got to have fun representing their class.

(below) IN YANKEE NO brim, Will Rowell won the best dressed for y2k. "It was fun to represent my class in style," Rowell said.

