

Vedanth Padmanabhan
I did not get a haircut.

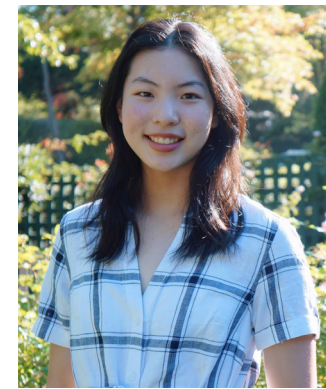

Michelle Pan
Veni, vidi, vici...

Dora Pang

Jonas Pao
Who's gonna carry the boats?

Isabella Pei

Damian Perez

Mayumi Perez
TO FREEDOM!!! - Nicki Minaj

Jennifer Perez-Lopez

Samuel Papp

Kyle Park

Are those butterflies in my tummy or did I just drink a glass of milk?

Naya Patel

I used to think I was indecisive, but now I'm not too sure.

Nathan Pazmino

Ila Perinkulam

live, laugh, love <3

Arati Periyannan

i made this

Wesley Perlman

Joseph Peters

IN FOR THE long ride

Story by Arati Periyannan

Phela Durosini talks about a bike trip with his friends to Oregon.

Seven students embarked on a 700 mile trip from Portland, Oregon to Palo Alto. Instead of taking a car or a plane, these students chose to bike.

"We wanted to do a more ambitious trip,"

senior Phela Durosini and member of the biking club

"It became very mundane because we just had to wake up, bike, eat, bike, and go to bed."

PHELA DUROSINI

Durosini — accompanied by Elizabeth Fetter ('23), Eoin O'Connell ('23), Peter Fetter ('25), and three alumni, Deigo Diaz, Martin Steer, and Sebastian Aseda — took the Amtrak up to Portland, leaving only three days after the end of the school year.

This wasn't the first time the group went on a bike trip together. Last summer, they went on a three-day trip, inspiring their longer nine-day trip this year.

"We wanted to do a more ambitious trip," Durosini said.

Throughout the trip, there were times where the trip proved to be almost too ambitious.

While most of their days consisted of the same things: wake up, bike, eat, bike, sleep, and repeat; there were a few unexpected days. With nine days of biking and days of rain, they group persevered.

"One time when it was raining one of the guys, Martin crashed," Durosini said. "That was pretty unexpected."

Overall, the trip was a success, even with challenges. The team met their goal of biking around 700 miles from Portland back to home.

"There were definitely some points where if I had the option to just stop, I would have just stopped," Durosini said.

While some days were both physically and mentally draining, it is a trip Durosini will remember.

(top left) GOLDEN GATE POSE, the biking crew stops on their way home to take a picture at the Golden Gate bridge. (top right) SMILES ALL AROUND, the group stops during their long journey to capture the memories being made.

(below) COASTIN' ACROSS THE coast Phela Durosini ('23) poses for a picture and shows off the pretty view. Photos courtesy of Phela Durosini

Kaella Peters

Rohan Phanse

Cameron Phillips

"I hate to lose more than I like to win" - Larry Bird

Thea Phillips

squirrels in my pants!

Uri Ponte

pretty weird vibes here

Alexander Profit

I'm not the Step Father I'm The Father That STEPPED UP

Isai Pulido

Claire Qin

If you wait until the last minute to do something, it only takes a minute.